

Pick the correct definition of polymorphism.

A concept in which one interface can be applied to different data types.

A concept in which an object is compared by referential equality.

A concept in which an object can be null.

A concept in which there is only one, unique interface for each data type.

Correct!

Continue